This laminated communication tool facilitates fast, point-to-pictures information exchange between medical personnel and patients. The compact, hinge-laminated format makes it easy to handle and wipe clean, and fits most pockets for quick access. Contains essential content for dealing with and treating medical needs and emergencies, and enables communication with patients about symptoms and conditions including falls, bites, wounds, allergic reactions, toxic ingestions, critical pain and illness identification, as well as medication dosage and treatment options. The new 2007 version adds content with additional food identification graphics, and a language identification panel to assist in finding an interpreter when necessary. An essential tool for any medical technician or provider that works with populations where language barriers impede diagnosis and treatment.

Effective on the Scene

By EMS Captain

A crew came to me explaining how they used the product both on the scene and in the ER. They were very happy with the results and the ER was impressed with how easily the Kwikpoints worked to get information in a hurry. Ironically, one of the fire fighters on scene was trying to dial a free interpreter line to figure out what was going on with this patient. The medics, with the Kwikpoint, figured out the complaint and necessary information before the interpreter could get on the phone.

Geared to the West

By Lisa Erskine

The translator is laminated pages that fold up to be compact. They stay clean since they are laminated. They don't tear easily since they are laminated. It has drawings that you point to indicate what you wish to say to someone.

It is good for someone who does not speak English traveling to an English language country.

It is pretty good if you are an English speaker traveling to a non-English language country.

There is a section for "Bite" and it contains: Rattlesnake, Cottonmouth and Copperhead. There are no other snakes listed. This means you can use it inside the US, but it doesn't have a cobra, viper or any snakes found in other nations. The booklet is geared to America. If I am in India again or Thailand and bitten by a Cobra or get venom shot into my eyes this will not help me as no Cobra is on the card. Australia has more venomous snakes than the US, but no Australian snakes are on the card. The bite section could be done better.

It is pretty good, but needs a little bit of work. It is better than nothing!
